TINTIC ELKS MAKE A BRAVE SHOWING

They Also Bring Their Strong Mascot Along With Them.

A DASTARDLY CONSPIRACY.

Plot to Steal the Miners' Young Elk of the Genus Irish Goatibus-Carnival Notes and Items.

The Tintic Elks came in this morning from the south in a drove. When it is considered that the lodge "7 come 11' has barely been in existence for ninety days they made a very imposing appearance in their pearl-gray dusters, opera hats and trappings. Nearly every one of the forty miners in line was a husky strong fellow-so was the mascot goat they brought along with them in a special car.

The delegation left Tintic over the Oregon Short Line at 7:30 this morning and arrived in Salt Lake punctual to the minute at 10 o'clock. Jim Love was at the throttle and Henry Walsh was the conductor of the train, so it goes without saying that no time was lost on the way.

The miners were met at the depot by Director General Stoll and the full band, after mutual introductions the parade swung into line, headed by Col. Hans Hassell, the taliest Elk in the country. Hassell wore the regulation hat, the crown of which towered fully seven feet above the ground. He also were a pair of shoes that had enough leather in them, to make up a complete wore a pair of shoes that had enough letther in them to make up a complete hide. From an authentic source it was learned that they were No. 15's, and his feet are still growing.

Immediately behind the big man, who bore a mastodonic miners' candle, came F. H. Stewart and John Allen, hanging on for dear life to a little elk of the genus Irish Goatibus, who had his eye upon a big theatrical poster outside the "News" building and refused to be comforted as he had had fused to be comforted as he had had his breakfast very early this morning and was hungry. The goat was en-dowed with a pair of horns of gener-ous proportions which were painted purple and bedecked with ribbons. He also were a storm coat which bere the legend "Guess My Name; I am in this Thing, too." No sooner had Director Stoll set eyes on this animal than he immediately appointed a committee to steal the goat. The committee will execute the dastardly act at a later date.
To the strains of martial music Marshals F. H. Holzheimer James Crooks followed by the cream of Tintic society stepped out bravely. There was City Marshal Gus Henriod, the man who caught Dynamiter Smith, and his right bower Dan Cronan endeavoring to dance a polka mazurka in their efforts to keep in step; Jerry Driscoll and George Hays, all swelled up with the thought that they had no one with them to keep cases on their going and coming for the next two days; Judge Watson was there respresenting the "shorts" with an injunction in his pocket against the Kangarqo court; W. M. Nesbitt, with the most luxuriant crop of Populistic whiskers that ever dallied with the ozone, was wearing an old duster that spoiled the general effect, but a warrant has been already sworn out against him. W. W. Thompson of the Tintle Mercantile company and C. H. Campbell, the builder and contractor, were also in evidence, as were a num-ber of other prominent citizens from the Juab county mining camp.

With firm tread and inflated chests these hardy Elks marched into the carnival enclosure, where Director General Stoll in a brief speech extended to them the privilege of the grounds and begged them to remember that tomor-row was Purple day, and he expected to have two thousand Elks in line: Exalted Ruler J. E. Driscoll, on behalf of the pilgrims, then took the platform and promised all kinds of things, end ing his oration with the exhortation to 'whoop 'er up.'' Afterwards the delegation was photographed, including the goat and a car-riage containing Mrs. W. M. Nesbitt and her little son McKinley, Mrs. Dr. Monahan and Mrs. Hans Hassell. They then broke for uptown to meet late this afternoon and escort the Ogden delega-tion from the Short Line depot.

PURPLE DAY.

Electrical Parade to be the Crowning Glory of Festivities Tomorrow.

With the advent of Purple Day tomorrow the Elk festivities will have reached its zenith. Great preparations have been made to make the electrical parade tomorrow night one which will be remembered. Queen Mabelle will appear in her robes of state with her maids of honor in carriages illuminated by electricity. Then will follow two by electricity. Then will follow two thousand Elks from various lodges of Utah, Idaho, Montana, Colorado and Wyoming; floats and the Jarbour cosmopolitan aggregation of performers in their rarest plumage. The Butte dele-gation of Elks are expected to arrive tomorrow morning to participate in the festivities, while the Denver Elks will also be on hand when the band begins

The parade will start at 7.50 tomorrow

INDIAN SUN DANCE.

Wierd Performance Under Way Down on the Carnival Midway.

While the authorities have been in formed regarding the matter at the same time it is nevertheless a fact that there is a full dress war dance in progress right in the heart of Salt Lake City. With the idea in view of cor-roborating this rumor a number of Salt Lake citizens adjourned to West Temple street this afternoon and, attracted thither by divers uncouth noises, gained admission to the Indian village within the Carnival enclosure. It is up to someone to give an in-terpretation and solution of the strange antics indulged in by "Poor Lo" on the raised platform at the end of the enclosure. As a source of revenue and in aid of the building fund three guesses for a quarter would undoubtedly prove an interesting competition, the winner to take that $500-scalp which Chief Charley Mack waves so enthusi-

Chief Charley Mack waves so enthusiastically during the dance.

In the absence of a lecturer to explain the fine and intricate points of the exhibition the "News" representative hunted up an old Indian fighter and besought him to end the suspense and tell him what it all meant. The Indian fighter aforesaid sadly shook his head and said he guessed that it was "some of their religious rites," but when it came to the significance of the various sets of inneers indulged by the when it came to the significance of the various sets of lancers indulged by the entire company he classed it all under the heading of "damfino," which is possibly the Ute for something choice. One thing he was confident about and that was that the dance indulged in down on the Midway is the same as that which was in fashion before the advent of Christopher Columbus.

It must be said that the dance is somewhat of a sensation to the un-initiated, and under the glare of the electric light it is a very weird affair. The musical effects are striking-es-pecially the drum. It is when it comes to the costumes, however, that the Indians shine. A more fantastic aggregation of costumes (or the lack of attire as the case may be), was never before designed by any tallor who was in the last stage of delirium tremens. They are absolutely flore. tremens. They are absolutely fierce. Imagine suddenly turning the corner and running against a second edition of a human Glia monster with green legs, a yellow jaw and chin and a vivid red face, the whole topped off by a bunch of rooster feathers and a strong breath. It is somewhat startling, but it is a mere circumstance to the pan-demonium that regins on the platform demonium that regins on the platform at the north end of the village.

At the east side of the stage sits the orchestra, made up of old bucks and the entire population of squaws and papooses. Here is Coyote Kate, with her scolding locks done up in cow tails a la Francaise; Anti-Fine-Comb Carrie, with a yellow complexion and purple freckles; Pocohontas Polly, the flower of the flock in her opera cloak of white bearing the legend in red "High Grade Patent, Logan, Utah"; Pop-Eyed Gazelle, of the Teton in war paint and army blankets, and other reigning belles too numerous to enumerate. These too numerous to enumerate. These beat padded sticks upon an Indian drum and say "wow-wow-wow" in a fashion that would denote that they ere undergoing a surgical operation It is upon the dancers, however, that the eyes of the pale-face are focussed. The noble Redman enters into the social function with an earnestness of purpose that is entrancing. His stage appearance is fascinating, but the keeper of the wardrobes should not hand out the discarded white shirt of the pale face as costume for one or two of the artists, as it is liable to efface some fond memories planted in the youthful breast by Fennimore Cooper. Chief Charley Mack leads the obse-quies and with the grace of a dromedary performs divers gyrations according to Hoyle. He is clad in a pair of yellow continuations and wears the shirt of the white man flaunted to the breeze. At stated intervals a prety little Indian girl, despite her paint and trimmings, precedes the chief and waves a stick with a red rag at the end in front of Charley. The chorus in the background all the time jumps stiff-legged and keeps time with the "orchestra" by blowing whistles that are adorned with feathers and other curios. For the major part the chorus is dressed in paint and inciden-tals. It is hard to say whether the paint or the incidentals are the more start-In the immediate center of the bunch generally stands a brave of avoirduols in glad paint and wearing a crown f feathers which extend down his back to the ground, a breastplate of tooth-picks and an apron of divers colors completes his costume. His bare legs are a vivid yellow and he carries a carnival cane and says "wow-wow" with touching gravity.

Then there is another file leader with like green knees and red and less He

He also says "wow-wow" at stated intervals.

Nearly everybody wears sleigh bells and fur mufflers around his knees, while one of the chorus carries what appears to be a dead magpie at the end appears to be a dead magple at the end of a green pole. Then at stated intervals they all break loose and the patter of bare feet, the clash of the drum, sleigh bells, whistles and other sleep destroyers are absolutely immense.

CARNIVAL NOTES.

The takings at the Midway shows have averaged about $2,500 every day. A delegation of thirty Elks from Lodge No. 674 arrived from Pocatello this morning.

At 7:30 this evening there will be a special parade through the business portion of the city.

The fines imposed at the Kangaroo court yesterday footed up to $369.15. Total to date $1,410.40. There were 9,306 paid admission to

RAIL AND SHIP RATE MEETING

Schumacher, Burley and O. R. & N. Officials at San Francisco.

ADJUSTING THROUGH RATES

Attempting to Properly Divide Business Among Pro-Rating Lines Now Interested.

With the opening of this week announcement was made of the departure for San Francisco of Traffic Manager Schumacher and General Passenger Agent Burley of the Oregon Short Line. The purpose of their trip to the coast by these gentlemen was not made known at the time, but it now transpires that a number of other prominent railway officials have for the past day or two been making the the Golden Gate city their rendezvous. There are today officials of the Oregen Rallway & Navigation company, Ore-gon Short Line and Pacific Coast company at the Palace hotel, holding a con-ference on steamer rates between the ports of San Francisco and Portland and Seattle, and rail and water rates from here to Washington, Oregon, Ida-ho and Montana towns, via Portiand and Seattle.

The interested parties to the conference assert that no noteworthy change in either passenger or freight rates are contemplated, the principal object of the conference being to make a more suitable division of through rates among the pro-rating lines.

Importance is attributed to the meeting in that it may have a tendency to distribute business among the systems in accordance with their revenue-earning capacity.

WILL BROAD GUAGE. La Veta Pass Line of D. & R. G. is to be Widened.

Stockholders of the Denver & Ric Grande at their annual meeting at headquarters in the Equitable building October 15th will authorize the construction of a standard guage line over La Veta pass on the Sangre de Christo range," says the Denver Post of Tues-

This is another move by the Denver & Rio Grande in its efforts to make every line of the road in the state standard guage. It has been urged by President Jeffery and recommended by him in his annual reports for several years. To make the standard guage through La Veta pass will take, it is estimated. a year, and will involve an enormous sum of money. The engineering diffi-culties, too, will be great, but the engineers are confident that there will be no obstacles encountered which they will not be able to surmount.

The grade will remain as at present. The principal work will be to widen the pass so that standard gauge cars can be operated.

"Constantly increasing business caused by the country settling and nev mines opening, and a consequent in-crease in business, is the reason as-signed by Mr. Jeffery for the demand for standard gauge. With the third rail in, cars can be handled through without a transfer of foads, and, more important, larger loads can be carried. The standard gauge which will be at thorized by the stockholders next month is from La Veta to Alamosa. As this is the annual meeting, a new board of directors will be elected.

"Stockholders of companies making up the Denver & Southwestern railway system will hold their annual meeting October 1 in their headquarters in the Boston building. There is a report current that numerous changes will made in the boards, and that George Gould will be represented." SPIKE AND RAIL.

W. C. Metzger, of Denver, connected with the Wabash, is visiting railroad men here. The Rio Grande Western expects to haul to Salt Lake its share of conference visitors. President Cassatt, of the Pennsylvania railway, is aggressive in his fight upon George Gould.

Announcement is made that Chief Engineer Berry, of the Union Pacific, has disapproved of the Ogden-Lucin cut-off on the Southern Pacific By next Saturday the Oregon Short Line expects to have completed its Houston branch. Big preparations for a celebration of the event are in hand by the citizens. Local railroads are having increased patronage on account of the carnival, all incoming trains carrying loads of excursionists in addition to regular passengers.

A day or two ago there was an an nouncement to the effect that the San Pedro people had sold out to the Short Line. Since that time nothing has been heard of it for the very pertinent reason that it was untrue.

It is expected that the new transfer slips for the Consolidated Railway and Power company will arrive in a few days. There are 2,000,000 of them and the consignment weighs about two tons. In the new form the farce of having faces printed is done away with and the transfers are so printed as to allow of transfers over all of the consolidated lines, except return upon parallel streets. It is possible that some day the company may issue transfers upon transfers, as they do in most of the large cities of the east. In those places no one thinks of taking undue advantage of this privilege. Double transfers are given to allow a passen-
